Background and Context of WAEC in Liberia

Historical Overview of WAEC in Liberia

The West African Examinations Council (WAEC) has been a cornerstone of secondary education assessment across West Africa since its establishment in 1952. Liberia, as a member of WAEC since its early years, has relied heavily on the council's standardized examinations to evaluate secondary school students' readiness for higher education and their future careers. The WAEC exams serve as a national benchmark, ensuring uniformity and fairness across the region's diverse educational institutions.

Educational Landscape Leading up to 2014

By 2014, Liberia was still recovering from the devastating effects of the civil war that ended in 2003. The conflict had severely impacted infrastructure, teacher availability, and student enrollment. Despite these challenges, the government and various development partners intensified efforts to rebuild the education sector, emphasizing access, quality, and relevance.

In this context, the 2014 WAEC exams represented a crucial indicator of progress. The results were eagerly anticipated by students, parents, educators, and policymakers alike, serving both as a reflection of the resilience of Liberia's education system and a guide for future interventions.

- Student Preparedness: Disruptions caused by the civil war led to inconsistent school attendance and learning outcomes.
